On August 17, 2021, a 38-foot sailboat named Jefe arrived in Falmouth, Maine, after completing a remarkable solo non-stop circumnavigation of the globe. The journey, which took 368 days, was an epic tale of resilience, perseverance, and triumph.

The skipper of Jefe was Carina Nigri, a 32-year-old Italian sailor who had always dreamed of sailing around the world. In 2019, she purchased Jefe, a used sailboat that she had meticulously prepared for her ambitious voyage.

On October 18, 2020, Nigri set off from Sagres, Portugal, on her solo adventure. She sailed across the Atlantic Ocean, through the Panama Canal, and up the Pacific Ocean to Alaska. She then crossed the Bering Strait into the Arctic Ocean, where she faced treacherous ice conditions. After rounding the northernmost point of Alaska, Nigri sailed down the Pacific Ocean, across the Indian Ocean, and around the Cape of Good Hope. She then crossed the Atlantic Ocean again, returning to Falmouth on August 17, 2021.

Nigri's journey was not without its challenges. She faced storms, equipment failures, and moments of loneliness. But she also experienced the beauty of the natural world, the thrill of adventure, and the satisfaction of achieving her dream.

The Challenges

Nigri faced a number of challenges during her solo circumnavigation.

These included:

- Storms: Nigri encountered several storms during her journey, including a Category 4 hurricane in the Pacific Ocean. She had to use all of her skills and experience to keep Jefe safe.
- Equipment failures: Nigri's boat was equipped with a number of electronic devices, including an autopilot and a watermaker. However, these devices failed on several occasions, forcing Nigri to rely on her own skills and ingenuity.
- Loneliness: Sailing solo for months on end can be a lonely experience. Nigri missed her family and friends, and she often had to find ways to stay motivated.
- Ice conditions: Nigri sailed through the Arctic Ocean during the winter months, where she encountered treacherous ice conditions. She had to be constantly on the lookout for icebergs and sea ice.

The Rewards

Despite the challenges, Nigri also experienced a number of rewards during her solo circumnavigation. These included:

- The beauty of the natural world: Nigri sailed through some of the most beautiful places on Earth, including the remote islands of the Pacific Ocean and the icy waters of the Arctic Ocean.
- The thrill of adventure: Nigri loved the challenge of sailing solo around the world. She enjoyed the feeling of being out on the open ocean, with nothing but the wind and the waves to keep her company.
- The satisfaction of achieving her dream: Nigri had always dreamed of sailing around the world, and she was finally able to achieve her goal. It was a moment of great pride and satisfaction.

Carina Nigri's solo non-stop circumnavigation of the globe was an epic tale of adventure and triumph. She faced numerous challenges along the way, but she never gave up on her dream. Her journey is an inspiration to us all, showing us that anything is possible if we set our minds to it.
