The International English Language Testing System (IELTS) is a standardized English language proficiency test that is recognized by over 10,000 organizations worldwide, including universities, employers, and immigration authorities. The test is designed to assess the English language skills of non-native English speakers who wish to study, work, or migrate to a country where English is the official language.

The IELTS test is divided into four sections: Listening, Reading, Writing, and Speaking. Each section is scored on a scale of 0 to 9, with 0 being the lowest score and 9 being the highest score. The overall IELTS score is the average of the scores from the four sections.

Many test takers set a target band score, which is the score that they need to achieve in order to meet the requirements of the organization they are applying to. For example, some universities require a minimum IELTS score of 7.0, while some employers require a minimum score of 8.0.
